

Codeunits in Business Central

A codeunit is a container for AL code that you can use in many application objects. You typically implement business logic in codeunits and call the codeunit from the object that needs to perform that specific logic.

Procedures in Business Central

Like other languages, AL methods are a fundamental programming element. A method, also known as a procedure, is a named group of statements that perform an operation or task.

1. Local procedures
2. Internal procedures
3. Protected procedures
4. Global procedures