Try Functions in Business Central

Try methods in AL enable you to handle errors that occur in the application during code execution. For example, with try methods, you can provide more user-friendly error messages to the end user than errors thrown by the system.

We should not include any write transactions in try method, if try method contains a write transaction a run time error will occur